Markets around the world are already adapting to climate change impacts and further action from Governments will only accelerate and amplify business innovation, ambition and collaboration towards a low-carbon, high-resilient economy. This breakout session seeks to provide insight on how leading companies are turning the climate challenge into new opportunities and on key actions that business can implement to show more ambition in climate in the lead up to COP21 in Paris.

- What are the latest insights on COP21 processes?
- How can business contribute to global climate change mitigation and adaptation agendas?
- What are the key policies that have enabled the private sector action and innovation on climate change issues?
- How can the private sector engage in the global platforms on climate change, water, energy, etc?
