

Keynote Address

Ahead of the 15th anniversary of the UN Global Compact in June, the Korea Leaders Summit is convened to showcase how Korean companies in the country are taking action and partnering to advance societal priorities. The Summit will also serve as an opportunity to reflect on latest corporate sustainability trends with an emphasis on the United Nations global agenda for sustainable development and climate change, two of the most important priorities of the (United Nations and Secretary-General). (The year) 2015 presents an historic opportunity to adopt a new sustainable development agenda and to reach a global agreement on climate change, in which companies will play important roles. By emphasizing the imperatives of the two global priorities – SDGs and Climate Change, UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon and GGGI Assembly President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono will call for business leaders to scale up their efforts and demonstrate visionary corporate statesmanship as a key partner to the United Nations.
